A BLAST AT SORORIS.

Woman's Alleged Unfitness to Vote or Govern—The Queens of History no Great Shakes—The Subordination of the Fair Sex Decreed by God and Nature.

The new volume entitled "Woman's Suffrage a Reform against Nature," by the Rev. Horace Bushnell, of Hartford, Connecticut, has just been published by Charles Scribner & Co. Its publication was announced some time ago, and its appearance has been looked for with great interest both by the friends and opponents of female suffrage. Dr. Bushnell could scarcely touch upon any subject without imparting to it some of the high mental and moral qualities for which he is so justly celebrated, and even those persons who may differ most earnestly from the conclusions embodied in this work, will nevertheless concede the close logical reasoning and ripe thought which the author has brought to the consideration of his theme.

The author by no means pretends to have exhausted all argument upon the subject of female suffrage. All he claims is to "bring the question to some fixed issue, taking it away from the mere chance working it has had hitherto," and showing wherein it differs from all other reforms and why he regards it as "a reform against nature," and one which no sensible people should adopt. As Dr. Bushnell's views cannot fail to largely influence the current of thought and discussion, and must therefore be of wide spread interest, we give his opinions in his own words:

PURSUITS OPEN TO WOMEN.

The author, in the first place, concedes that man has piled up some disability and depression on the female half of the human race. But he denies that the wrongs have been intentional; and states that, in all cases, they are redressed as soon as pointed out. He admits that there are many employments and pursuits from which women are now exempt, which might be advantageously opened to them, and favors the equal collegiate education of the sexes, as a means of developing and testing the capacities of women for the pursuits for which they may be readily qualified. He says:

As in the medical and legal professions, so in the clerical, there is a large department of ministry and service that may properly be open to women, though no official right of administration or presiding rule is permitted. It is even conceivable that a considerable number of women, duly trained, should carry on the quickening and edifying work in as many churches, under the presiding oversight and rule of some common presbyter or bishop, doing every one of them, it might be, a greater and more valued work than he. The great departments of agriculture, engineering, and war, scalaring, railroad working, architecture, machine building, all the heaviest, roughest, toughest forms of creative labor are reserved for men. Almost any woman would even think it an affront to be offered a part in them. Indeed, she has neither muscle, nor eye, nor hand, for these engagements.

FEMALE SUFFRAGE AGAINST NATURE

Does it follow that in doing all which is best, and for the highest possible advantage of women, we are called to give them an equal place with men in the ballot, and the right of public office? Many persons who mistook their ground in opposing the abolition of slavery, are as really shy, under this new question, of being caught again, and are half ready to leap into the gulf of what is called the emancipation of women, before they can distinctly see the bottom of it. Others again, who have all their lives long meant to keep the van of human progress, and never fall behind, are now being pushed on blindly by their mere habit, as if there were some real inconsistency in turning conservative now. They have a certain dislike or distaste for any such holding back of motion, and it troubles them that, for some reason, they do not feel as ready to go forward as they would expect. The very great distinction between reforms that go with nature and reforms against nature they do not apprehend distinctly enough to have the benefit of it. And just here lies this question, we are now to see, of this great, leadingly momentous question of woman's suffrage.

FEMALE SUFFRAGE THE END OF OUR CIVILIZATION.

Women having once gotten the polls will keep them to the end, and if we precipitate our American society down this abyss, and make a final wreck of our public virtue in it, that is the end of our new-born, more beneficent civilization. The race must now look for some older and second new world—where shall it be found?—that can set on foot still another and to let experiment. Our sun is set, is there any other bright sun to rise?

Dr. Bushnell discusses at great length the abstract question of suffrage, and shows that it is an acquired and not a natural right, and one, therefore, which should be granted to or withheld from women entirely on the grounds of expediency or State policy. That female suffrage is a matter of absolute right or first principle he denies, and says:

Women must get their right to vote, if at all, just where men have gotten it; out of history, out of providential preparations and causes, out of the concessions of custom, out of expediences concluded, and debated reasons of public benefit. We have no better right than this, as men, and there is no better right to be, for women.

DOUBTS ABOUT UNIVERSAL SUFFRAGE.

are very broadly mentioned by the Reverend Doctor, who by no means regards it as a grand specific and panacea for all human ills. He writes:

A considerable dose of humility is needed visibly, to cure us of the nonsense (about universal suffrage) which having first infected our men, with undue conceit of advancement is now infecting our women with an unreal and excessive hope that they may win the same. There is much less fear as all here than our coarse patriotic fervors assume, and a great deal less for women than for men. If the scheme of suffrage must go down, it will be a very great advantage that our women are not in it. It will go down, if at all, simply by the rotting process of its own corruptions, and our ambitious women will find little comfort in being the bad other half that goes down with it.

The author enters very largely into the question of woman's right to govern, and devotes a great deal of space to prove that both nature and religion are against it. We expect that no part of the author's work will be more freely canvassed than his arguments upon this point. He controverts the notion that the suffrage would be in any respect a correction of the remediable wrongs of women. As for the alleged equality of the sexes he says:

The whole masculine nature, nay, and the whole female nature to boot, are out together in stern protest that men shall be men, and not women at all. Every woman wants a man for her husband, and every husband wants to be a man. The argument therefore breaks down utterly; manly women are not wanted, and womanly men are not wanted, and most happy it is, in both cases, that they are not; for it is opposites here, and not similitudes, that make the power. The man will be manlier that he has a true womanly wife, and the wife will be the more womanly, that she has a manly husband. Develop both natures to the utmost, and the development of each will help that of the other.

THE NEW JERSEY FEMALE SUFFRAGE EXPERIMENT

is related with peculiar emotion by the author. For five years, from 1802 to 1807, women enjoyed the right of voting in the State, with results which are thus summed up:

We have in this brief chapter of experiment a really appalling refutation of the promise so frequently made in these discussions, that when women come to vote they will bring in honesty and decency, and make a full end of the frauds we now deplore and think of with so great alarm. On the contrary we see, as distinctly as need be, that women, never trained to consider what is in a vote, may have the lightest possible conception of it, and can be, if they will, the corruptest, most unmanageable voters in the world. Besides, we can also see as distinctly that no board of inspectors will ever be able to detect the disguises that women can put on, by assuming many varieties of dress. They have every facility in the matter of dress, for taking on fifty characters in a day, and voting them all, without any least probability of detection. Accordingly, when the Legislature of New Jersey, in the very next year, A. D. 1807, come to the conclusion that they have had enough of women's suffrage, and will now be clear of it—when they take up their parable and begin to say, "Whereas, it is highly necessary to safety, quiet, good order, and dignity of the State," &c., &c., it is rather difficult not to be imagining what we all in every State, shall want to say after a like experiment. Shall we be able to say it, or will it be too late?

FEMALE RULERS—ISABELLA OF SPAIN.

What in fact do we hear, several times a day, when it is alleged that women have no governing right and no fitness to be in places of authority, but that England, one of the greatest and most forward kingdoms of the world, has a queen for its ruler, a woman celebrated for no specially brilliant gifts and yet a much respected, properly successful head magistrate. If now this particular English woman can rule one empire, may not other women often more gifted, suffice to make good voters, or even good under magistrates? But if we are to come at the real merit of this argument, it may be very important to find, when the Queen bears rule, who rules the Queen? No woman stands higher probably in the scale of ability to govern, than the famous Isabella of Spain. And yet, if we will see the exact truth, she is nothing but a lay-figure queen, behind whom stands her great high counsellor Ximenes, robing her with honors from himself. She, that is Ximenes, hedged about her husband as by a kind of sentry guard, fortified him by ceremonies, tied him up by oaths, all which may have been very kind, but not particularly gracious. She also, that is Ximenes, prepared the Inquisition by his priestly counsel leaving it to her to adorn his red dragon institute by her beautiful graces and charms. There was nothing in fact that could be called a felicity in her administration, but the ornament she could put to oppression, and fettering, unreliable and she gave to Columbus. Take away Ximenes, and there is no counsel; take away Columbus and there is no brightening fact or glory.

There is also another consideration, as respects these reigning women. After all, they are not women, but men; for they do not stand in their line as successors of women, but in almost all cases as successors of men. The gap they fill is a gap in some male line—And they bring very little into it commonly but their name and signature. They are like like ciphers between the other figures, important for the spacing they make, and not for what they slightly themselves. They sign as women, rule as women, it is true, but the function they wield is felt, both by themselves and their people, to be a man's function, and the queenhood of it has a certain masculine order and law. Besides the counsellors and chief ministers are always men, and there is not, in fact, a Queen of all Europe, and probably never was, who could make a woman her chief ministers, and carry on the Government. No Queen could hold her place a week having only female statesmen for ministers.

ELIZABETH, OF ENGLAND

She was surrounded, as it were, and caged by a body of nobles and grave councilors, and great men pillared in wise moderation and heroic self respect, and she knocked herself about among them, first against one, and then against another, persecuting some, annoying all, and calling it government, whereas, in fact, they all were governing her with as much patience as they could, or as much long sufferance as they must, keeping her, by their changing attractions and repulsions, within the endurable conditions. There was never a finer illustration of the fact that women as such are not called to use authority for with all the force she employed, the tyranted edict she pronounced, and the imperious and haughty air she assumed, she was held up largely by the courteously moderated pity of her great men, and as to genuine personal authority, she never had a trace of it in the feeling of anybody. She had an almost universal jealousy of women, and especially of the women. She was not less sure that her wizenly face was beautiful, than she was that she was doing everything in the kingdom herself.

Her court endured her as an odious, royally detestable woman, and sought to make the best of her as far as they could. And when she died it was not a day too soon.

She was only a bad one in a fair apple, and if another woman had succeeded her, promising to be just like her in her rule, it is doubtful whether she could have held the reins in hand for a single six months.

I have spent thus much of time on the governing women, because they are cited with so great frequency and confidence in the general question I am discussing. In the first place, they are in men's places just to persuade the filling of them, and be helped by the male form of the position. In the next place, they do everything by men, and so putting always the very highest male element of the nation at the point of real head-ship over its affairs. And then, once more, they have never in any one case shown more than a very meagre authority and capacity of rule in themselves.

ASPASIA

Curiously enough, the one female of sacred and profane history for whom the reverend doctor seems to have a special liking, is Aspasia, the "friend" of Pericles, of Athens. Our space precludes us from quoting further on this tempting theme. Nor can we follow the author in his description of the evils of the female dominion under the French Bourbons, when "the kings governed the kingdom and the mistresses governed the kings." Upon this and other points we can only refer our readers to the volume itself, which is certain to make no slight sensation in the world of female politics.

A Turkish Slave Market.

A correspondent of the London Star, writing from Smyrna, describes his visit to a slave market. He says: A party of us, under the leadership of our guide, passed along Frank street, and then turned up through the bazars and the Persian market, and on till we passed through a kind of gateway, in which several Turks were smoking. Here we found a moderate sized square, surrounded by a number of low buildings; a few Turks were lounging about, and two or three boys, as black as ebony, stood eyeing us with considerable curiosity, but there was nothing to indicate the existence of a slave market—it might have been a market for any other commodity. Our guide, however, went to a door in the corner of the square, about which several people were standing, and some black boys were engaged in packing Turkish butter in tubs. We entered and then we found ourselves in the presence of a slave owner and his slaves. The man stealer was a stout, sensuous, lazy looking Turk, about eighty years of age, sitting wrapped up in costly Eastern robes, with the everlasting pipe in his mouth. The slaves consisted of five women and two boys. Three of the women were comparatively young, ranging from nineteen to twenty four years old, the other two about thirty, and the boys about thirteen or fourteen. Two women were sitting Turkish fashion on a broad divan or platform, and the boys were packing butter. All were black as ravens. We were asked to sit down, and coffee was immediately brought to us. One of the girls was remarkably good looking, had on a good dress, and with necklace of beads and long ear drops, made some pretensions to style, and the others were very passable as negresses from our European standpoint of beauty. Another Turk came in and took his place near the proprietor, and spoke a few words of English.

We asked through our guide what was the price of the best looking of the girls. The old man told us £300 and ordered her to stand up, which she immediately did, showing a fine form and an erect position. When I took out my pencil and paper to note the price, they all seemed to exhibit considerable interest in our visit; the price of the other two young women was £250 each, and that of the two elder, who were strongly built, £300 each, and that of the two boys £350 each. Two of the women stood up for our inspection. Our guide, who was a native of Smyrna, told us that if we purchased any of them, we should receive papers from the Government, transferring the property to our possession, and it was with difficulty that we could make them understand that the papers would be of no value as soon as the slave and master reached the British dominions.

After giving them a little "backsish," we left the dirty den with our hatred of Eastern abominations very much intensified. I confess, as an Englishman, I can feel nothing but shame for our national friendship for the Turkish Government and its institutions. We are told that after the Crimean war, slavery disappeared, but it is gradually spreading again, and in a country, the government of which is as corrupt as rotten money can make it, and whose officers from the highest to the lowest, bow blindfold before the power of "backsish," it is no wonder that slavery should spread.

Geary Re-Nominated

PHILADELPHIA June 23

The Republican State Convention was called to order by Galusha A. Grow, Chairman of the State Central Committee, who congratulated the Convention on the unanimity that pervaded it.

Henry Souther, a friend of Gov. Geary, was elected temporary Chairman, and after the appointment of committees adjourned till two o'clock.

At the p.m. session Gov. Geary was nominated on first ballot, receiving 122 votes out 133, the rest scattering. Judge William was nominated for Judge of the Supreme Court on the first ballot.

Republican State Convention

COLUMBUS, O., June 23.

The Republican State Convention organized permanently at 2 p.m. John Sherman President, E. A. Parrott, Secretary, and one Vice President and Secretary from each district. The nominations are, for Governor, R. B. Hayes, Lieut. Governor, J. C. Lee, Treasurer, S. S. Warner, Supreme Judge, Luther Day, Attorney General, Col. F. B. Pond, of Morgan, Board of Public Works, Richard R. Porter, of Stark. The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That as citizens of the nation, representing the Republican sentiment of an honorable Commonwealth, we regard with sincere satisfaction the fidelity evinced by Gen. Grant to the Republican party and the policy both foreign and domestic of his national administration, and we pledge ourselves to support the measures inaugurated to insure conciliation, economy and justice at home and abroad.

New Advertisements To-Day.

Grand Celebration—Fourth of July.
Rubber Bathing Tub—J. M. Johnston
D. O. H., No 120—J. O. Shinn, Sec'y.
Theatre—Lottie Nellie.

Varieties.

—Howe's postoffice newsroom has Harper's for July.

—Hon. Simon Cameron has our thanks for public documents.

—Gideon's Band have unanimously agreed to join the fantastic matinee on the 5th of July.

—The Legislative Record has been completed. It contains nearly as many pages as that of last year.

—Hon H. C Johnson has accepted the invitation to deliver an oration at the 5th of July celebration in this city.

—The first lot of five, ten, fifteen, twenty-five and fifty cent notes were issued yesterday. The new greenbacks will make their appearance about the first of July.

—Attention is directed to the advertisement of A. M. Johnson, agent for the Universal Bath Tub. We shall refer to the peculiar merits of the invention to-morrow.

—Emma Light, of Juniata, stopped at the St. James Hotel, Pittsburgh, last Saturday night, and on retiring blew out the gas instead of turning it off. She was suffocated and has since died.

—The Common Council, last evening, voted to open Martin street, from Pine to Diamond street, and the Board meet this morning at 10 o'clock to view the premises and declare the damages.

The County Commissioners have decided to build an iron bridge of eighty-five feet span for Franklin street, the city assuming the expense of completing the connection on the north side by filling in the gap, and docking on both sides.

—The brakesmen's strike on the A. & G. W. Railway resulted in a failure. Some of the men have resumed work at the old wages, and new men have taken the place of others, and the officers have applications from more men than they need.

—A little son of Rabbi Johnson, residing on Walnut street, fell from off a fence into a barrel of water, on Tuesday, and narrowly escaped asphyxiation. He was discovered by the protection of his feet above the water, and rescued by Mrs. Auerbach, and with some difficulty resuscitated —Business is brisk at Pleasantville, and various building enterprises, public and private, are in progress, which give the borough an unusual active and wide awake appearance. The plank road company have a numerous force employed laying the track and a considerable portion of the new road is already completed.

—The Republican primary meetings occur to-morrow, a matter of considerable importance to us as a community, and which should not be overlooked. Whatever differences may prevail with regard to candidates in general, we should unite as a unit for the representatives of the new county project, Ames and Johnson. They are entitled to every vote.

—We are credibly informed by the Secretary of the Independent base ball club of Titusville that the club have not consolidated with the Rescue Hook & Ladder Company, and that the match game spoken of will come off on Friday, July 2d, between the Independent base ball club and the Senecas of Oil City. Our previous statement was made by what we supposed to be reliable authority, but we were misled, and therefore make this correction.

—The beautiful statue of Victory, intended for place on the monument now being erected in Harrisburg to the memory of those Pennsylvania soldiers who fell in the Mexican war, has arrived and been unveiled. It is described as a specimen of exquisite and rare workmanship. It is upwards of nine feet high, and weighs eighty thousand pounds. The face of Victory wears a most pleasing expression, and her wings, together with the flag and wreath, are most exquisitely carved.

—The Meadville Republican says that a couple of freight trains undertook to pass each other Sunday afternoon on the same track just east of Jamestown, N. Y.—a feat which has never been accomplished on the A. & G. W. Road, or any other road. The result was a general smash up, both engines were knocked into "pi" and numerous freight cars were wrecked. Fortunately no body was hurt." It is said the offending conductor and engineer have been discharged. The collision was the result of disobedience of orders.

—Iowa is ahead on the subject of Woman's rights. At a recent term of the District Court held in Mt. Pleasant, Mrs. Bell A. Mansfield, A. B., of that city, was admitted to the bar and authorized to practice in the Courts of the State. Mrs. M. is a young married lady, about twenty four years of age; is a graduate of the Iowa Wesleyan University and a lady of a strong mind. Her husband, Prof. J. M. Mansfield, was also admitted at the same time. The Examining Committee appointed by the Court certify that Mrs. Mansfield passed a most eminently satisfactory examination, giving the very best evidence of long and careful study, of excellent application, and a thorough acquaintance with the elementary principles of law.

—To KEEP the system cool, refreshed and vigorous, try the celebrated Vichy and Kissingen Water, on draught at White & Co.'s drug store

The Registry Law.

Sharswood holds the Registry Law passed by our recent State Legislature unconstitutional. We were fully prepared for such a decision. It is in full accordance with "Democratic precedent," in passing in review Republican legislation, generally. Registry laws are their special aversion; it may be, because they are fatal to Democratic ascendancy. Now the present law has passed in view of this well known disposition of Democracy to pick flaws with it. It was drafted by lawyers as high in proficient repute as even Sharswood, and not till it had met their approval did it become a law. Sharswood's conclusions may be echoed by his party, but whether they will be concurred in by his brethren on the Bench, remains to be seen. His reasonings may not seem to them quite so conclusive. The honest voters of the State will not fail to understand which of the two political parties of the day seek most sedulously to guard the purity of the ballot box, and which are indifferent or hostile to any checks upon frauds, any tampering with and abuse of the elective franchise.

Our Taxes in Titusville.

M. R. Rouse is the Collector of State and County Taxes by appointment of the County Commissioners, and N. B. Farrington of City taxes by appointment of Common Council. The tax duplicates prepared by the Assessors of each ward were given the Collectors the 1st of June, and the taxes are now payable within sixty days from that date. The valuation of city property by the Assessors is about three hundred and fifty thousand dollars, the estimate being hardly one quarter of the real value. The tax for State and county and poor tax is thirteen mills, the city ten cents and two mills, and the tax for city school purposes is thirty-eight mills in addition to the above, making a total of fifteen cents and three mills, or $53 550; or $35,700 for city purposes; $13 300 for school purposes, and $4 550 for State and county taxes This statement will vary somewhat from the real figures, as some species of property, taxable for city purposes, are not included in the above, but are subject to a special rate, such as dogs and watches.

The valuation last year was about thirty thousand less than the present year, owing to the more recent real estate improvements, and additions on personal property, and last year the rate per cent. was five per cent. for city purposes, on a valuation of $322,000, making the tax $16,100, and for school purposes on the same valuation, thirty-eight mills, or $12 236, and for State and county purposes thirteen mills, or $4 186, an aggregate of taxation of $32 522 for year 1868.

The increase of taxation of this year over last will therefore be $21,028. It will be seen that the rate for county and State and for school purposes is the same this year as last, the inconsiderable difference in the amounts being owing to the increased valuation for the present year on personal property. The city tax this year is $19,600 more than last year, the rate being raised from five per cent then to ten cents and two mills now The assigned reason for this increase of tax is the contemplated erection of a City Hall on the new city lot, adjacent to the Bush House, for offices, engine house, Council Chamber, etc, costing from $10 000 to $15,000; also the city portion of the expense of reconstructing the Franklin street bridge; also street openings and street improvements in general.

Gen. Thomas—A Good Movement.

It is given out that Gen George H Thomas, the new commander of the military division of the Pacific, including all the Pacific States and the Territories, has resolved upon a scientific exploration of the south eastern section of the State of Nevada, an extensive district in the heart of Fremont's great basin still unexplored and unknown Gen. Thomas is not only a model soldier, but one of the finest scholars in the Government service, possessing, among other things a rare knowledge of geology. To such a man, "on these piping times of peace," the command of the military division of the Pacific affords a fine field of scientific exploration, and we dare say that his projected reconnoissance of the south-eastern Nevada and the contiguous Territories will be in its discoveries of great value to the Government and all concerned.

The Tobacco Trade.

At the tobacco fair recently held at Louisville, Ky, in Pursuance of a custom introduced from abroad, a full report was made on the condition of the trade in the West. The crop estimates for 1869 are as follows: Kentucky, 70 000 hogsheads; Tennessee, 23 000; Indiana, and Illinois, 19,000, Missouri, 8 000—making a total of 120,000 hogsheads. The stock in the West is estimated at 8 000 hogsheads, and in the seaport at 19 000 making a total of 147 000 hogsheads to supply the demand. The foreign countries take the tobacco crop in the following proportions. England, 25 000 hogsheads; North Germany, 15 000, Spain, 10 000; Italy, 10 000. France, 9 000, Belgium, 4,000, the Mediterranean ports, 3 900; countries not specified, 5,500; giving a total of 82 400 hogsheads. The home demand is placed at 35,000 hogsheads for the West, and 15 000 for the East, bringing up the entire demand to 132, 400 hogsheads, which is 12,400 hogsheads above the crop for 1868. It is stated that the governments of Austria, France, Spain and Italy—countries where the manufacture is conducted under stringent rules, have permanent agents in the West for the purchase of tobacco. A large number of foreign buyers, who ship direct to England and Germany, also attend the Louisville fair. The sales at the various warehouses of Louisville, during the present year, it is reported, amount to 21,901 hogsheads, valued at $2,215,207.

We have had all sorts of anniversaries this season, and, perhaps, it is not especially wonderful that an osculatory one has been celebrated. The "Dunkards" as they are called, have been holding forth in Virginia, for the first time in seven years. They number about 15 000, and are scattered throughout the country. Most of them, it will be seen were present at the convention which was held in Rockingham County. The ceremonies of interest to the general public are the washing of feet during the anniversary's progress. The kissing is only indulged in by men with men, and women with women. But the kisses were so numerous that the camp-ground resounded constantly with hearty smacks. During the various religious services, rough men kissed each other with apparently all the ecstasy of lovers. It is to be hoped each "Dunkard" will not be compelled to abstain from kissing during the seven years before another convention will occur.

RAILROAD ON THE WEST SIDE OF THE HUDSON RIVER.—We learn from the Albany Argus that the directors of the Albany and New York railroad have resolved to prosecute the enterprise with the energy necessary to secure its early completion. A very perfect survey of the road has already been made under the supervision of Mr. Wentz, one of the most accomplished civil engineers in the country. If the citizens of Albany and those residing along the line of the road, will at once and without delay respond to the call for subscriptions, fifty two miles of the road from Albany to Kingston, can be put under contract in the month of September next, and when completed there will be a continuous line of railway, on the west side of the river, from Albany to Jersey City.

Letter from Niagara.

NIAGARA FALLS, June 21, 1869.

Editors Morning Herald:—

There is no lovelier spot of American scenery than this well known and frequently visited place; as seen in the golden splendor of a June morning, with its silvery mists mingling with the bright green of the trees, the variegated rainbow hovering over its grandeur, and the whole scene enlivened and made more charming by the gay parties of summer visitors who are enjoying its beauty. We are prone to linger while amid the thousand attractions which are presented—though aware of the familiarity of each to your readers And it was with the full expectation of being "bored" that we stepped from the cars in the sunshine of a bright morning, as remembrances of former trials came to mind of being associated with the whips of the irrepressible "cabbies," and subjected to a deafening roar of many voices, that we had long since been led to think were a part of the great cataract itself. Imagine, then, our surprise when we found ourselves unmolested, and the feeling of relief and delight that came over us as we beheld these miserable individuals, not only quiet and tractable, but "chained up" within a ten foot space near the depot, and prevented from annoying the stranger by the watchful eye of a blue coated guardian of the law.

And yet we could not repress a feeling of pity as we gazed upon these manly forms, and knew that like Othello—their occupations gone—their whips, once the terror of the sensitive traveler, hang listlessly and drooping in each nervous hand, and the ringing tones that once shouted "Here you are! all around the falls, for a dollar?" have dwindled to the plaintive request in minor key, of "Take my carriage, sir? ten cents an hour!" Once outside the limits of the railroad company you are laid siege to by some gentlemanly individuals, who suggest in a friendly manner, that should you desire a genteel traveling companion, one who has lived in the midst of the great cataract since he was a child, and whose many years of experience, coupled with a desire to benefit his fellow creatures by his knowledge of the beautiful, he will gladly spend a few months of his valuable time in pointing out the wonders of the place—for which, of course, a small pecuniary compensation is expected. Others, seemingly aware of the reputation they have gained, and desirous of enlisting your favor, approach you with a smile that cannot fail to win your susceptible heart, as they remark, "do you desire a min trip this morning?" or let me swindle you out of a few shillings?

But woe to the humble individual who listens to the siren like voice of these guides. "He is looking thee, beware!" Every smile that illumines his platonic countenance is but the precursor to a request for "setup," and once in their power you fall an easy victim.

In this case, the man who hesitates is lost. It is astonishing, the amount of pleasure you can derive from a small investment of government bonds at this place. One genteel looking individual, who has evidently seen better days, when "shackers" were more plenty, offered us the use of his magnificent rig for three cents. It is supposed he is a nobleman in disguise. A short ride with him will convince you that he is well disguised, and as you alight he mildly presents a bill of several dollars including toll, &c, which should you dare to dispute brings down upon you his threats coupled with curses loud and deep until you are glad to escape with your wardrobe entire

Another charming feature of the Falls is the number of Indian "Bazars" located hereabouts, which contain all the little trinkets and curiosities of the red man, which he gives to you for a consideration

I observed some of the oldest Indian names in the country over the doors of these Bazars, the Iroquois, the Mechadinigies, the O'Shaughnessy's O'Rourkes and several families of Brown who are the last of the Mohicans.

The beautiful Indian maidens whom you find here differ materially from those we read of in Cooper's novels Instead of the tawny cheek, starlight eye, and raven tresses, with a step like a fawn, and laughter whose music comes like babbling waters, we find that even the red maiden has adopted the conventionalities of dress peculiar to "the girl of the period." Her tresses are done up with switches and puffs a la pompadour, her delicate feet that once brushed the dew from the wild flowers, are encased in Opera boots, the olive hue that once gleamed from her cheek is buried beneath the touches of enamel, and the silvery voice that once carroled its sweet tone to the birds, or was lifted in reverence to the great spirit, has fallen to a deep bass, as she cries, "Cigars, Leads are worth five dollars," "cuse 'em, or put 'em up"

The poor red man is found here in his native purity, though in most cases the "red" has worn off, and he spends his time in blacking boots for his white conqueror, thus earning an honest penny which he hoards religiously until he can go to the circus or attend a velocipede race, and this brings to mind, the fact that located in the grove near the American Falls, is a fine track devoted exclusively to the bycicle and its rider Here we saw Lo, the poor red man careening widely around the track to the music of the band, and uttering wild war whoops of delight as he paddled his two wheeled canoe. Here is food for the philosopher, and a theme for the benevolent why not supply the red children of the plain with these timber steeds, upon which he could hunt the buffalo, pursue the foes, and finally make his grand entree into the happy hunting grounds. Reclining in the shade of a maple we saw the last of his tribe—at least, we suppose he was, for there were no more of his color near, and he appeared like one who had survived his friends. His declining days he spends in fashioning bows and arrows, which he sells to young Americans whose idea are learning to shoot.

We ventured to address him in the Ojibway tongue, asking him if he could shoot. "Oh, yes, I shoot freely," he said, and to test him, a five cent coin was inserted in a stick and placed several roads from him Rising to his feet as fast as his years and native rum would let him, he surveyed his stern features to relax into a smile, then drawing the tautened bow until the arrow rested upon the tip of his truly red nose, he snapped the string and shot a bootblack in the stomach who was sounding several feet to the left. We were satisfied that he could shoot; that his eye had not lost its cunning, and giving the five cents to the wounded boy to purchase an ice cream poultice, we left the spot.

But this is quite romance enough. Suffice it to say that the Falls are lovelier than ever Goat Island has not yet gone over the brink, and the International and Cataract are rapidly filling up with guests, who propose to drown their mental sorrows in this great volume of water, and wear out their summer clothing in the whirlpool of humanity that congregates here each season. The new suspension bridge affords one of the finest views of the Horse Shoe Falls, and the cabmen are as attentive as ever. C.

NEW POST OFFICE—MORRIS CORNERS.—By a recent order of the P. O. Department, a Post Office has been established at Morris Corners in south part of Rome township, six and a half miles due north of Titusville. Mr. Edward Morris has been appointed postmaster. The mail will leave Morris Corners every Saturday afternoon at one o'clock for Titusville, and return at three. A large district will be benefited by this new arrangement, which has been brought about by Congressman Gillillan.

Political.

The Paris Page says that John C. Breckinridge will yet be President of the United States. This is doubted in some of the Eastern papers.

Friends of Gen. Rosecrans will press his name as a candidate for Governor upon the Ohio Democratic State Convention, which meets July 7th.

Colonel Green Clay, grandson of Henry Clay, and a large planter in Mississippi, is talked of for conservative candidate for Congress from that State.

William C. Sherrod, formerly of the rebel army, is the Democratic candidate for Congress in the VIth District of Alabama. Mr. Sherrod's disabilities have been removed by act of Congress.

The thirty lady clerks to be employed in the Patent Office are to be examined in regular form, as to their capacity for the work. There will be a lady superintendent of that department.

C. P. Kimball, a prominent merchant of Portland, refuses to permit his name to be used as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Maine. He says that he has worked for 30 years in the ranks of the party, and desires to remain there.

The War Department is in receipt of information from Mississippi which goes to show that the condition of society there is considerably disturbed, and that the necessary military measures have been taken to prevent the perpetration of outrages by lawless parties.

Judge Sharswood, of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, in the case of Patterson and others against the various city officers of Philadelphia brought to test the constitutionality of the new Registry law, has delivered an opinion declaring the law unconstitutional and void

The New Orleans Times complains that Mr. A. Stephens seems to imagine that he has a mission to perform in creaking over the destiny of this country. It thinks his views are colored by a bad stomach and failing health, and tells him that he pays the American people a poor compliment when he sets himself up as an inspired prophet to point for them such a wretched, hopeless future.

A dispatch from Fortress Monroe, dated June 19th, says: Now that the election is drawing near, the people of Hampton and vicinity are beginning to take quite a lively interest in politics, and registration is progressing rapidly There seems to be quite a number of aspirants for Congressional honors in this district, who are preparing to take the stump and advocate their claims. The Hon. Joseph Segar, who was formerly a United States Senator from this district, announces himself as a candidate at large; Capt. H. B. Ayers, an ex army officer, is also a candidate; and it is said there are several others not yet in the field The common complaint is lively. All are building for the colored vote, and whoever is fortunate enough to secure it will undoubtedly be elected.

The call for the Maine Temperance State Convention, to be held in Portland on Tuesday 29th inst, invites "all temperance men, without regard to past party associations, who regard the vigorous and impartial enforcement of the legal prohibition of the liquor traffic as the paramount issue in the approaching gubernatorial campaign, and who, in the absence this year of other paramount issues of greater importance than the perfection of the schemes of reconstruction, are prepared, in the event of no such convention being made, to the State Convention of both political parties to present and support an independent temperance candidate for that position, to meet at the time mentioned and place, to decide upon such action as the exigencies of the case may demand, and to prepare, if necessary, for systematic action at the polls?"

On Monday Judge Fisher, presiding in the Washington Criminal Court, ordered the Marshall to summon a number of colored citizens to fill vacancies in the grand and petit jurors, the term of which was commenced yesterday morning A list of name was prepared accordingly, and those selected were summoned. But before the close of the week this new element will be represented among the white jurors

Everywhere we view,
Hey, then a jolly good time,
Twenty-fifth in March—
Don't you think that May time's
Pleasant as March

Apples in the orchard,
Mellowing one by one
Strawberries upturning
Soft cheeks to the sun,
Bees on faint wings roaming
Lilies fair to shape;
Doves may sit and murmure
Sun shine every place;

When one of James Fisk, Jr.'s steamers was preparing to leave New York on the last trip on board President Grant and 1500 other persons bound for the Boston Jubilee, "Fisk arrayed in a blue uniform, with broad gilt cap band and three silver stars on his coat sleeve, his wonder kids, and a diamond bosom pin as large as a cherry, stood at the gangway surrounded by his aids, bestarred and bestriped like himself and smiled, benignantly on the excited crowd."

We had related to us the other day the date of an old lady who formerly entertained travelers in a neighboring county. Before her guests commenced a meal it was her custom to ask a blessing. It is reported that Madeline Hemingway has made application to one of the leading theatres in New York for an engagement in the fall. At a recent Sabbath School Convention in an urban church, the ordinance of baptism was administered. The clergyman in charge stated with gratification that the occasion afforded him an opportunity to explain to the children a portion of the service. By way of illustration, he said, "in Old Testament times, blood was used as an atoning sacrifice, hence it was spoken of as purifier; but what is used as an emblem of purity now a days—what element is the symbol of perfect cleanliness?" A moment's pause, then a dozen little voices exclaimed, "Ivory soap!"

PATENT SAFETY POWDER.

IMPORTANT TO

Engineers and Contractors

We would all attention to the fact that we have the Patent Safety Powder for blasting Rock, and that no other powder can be used instead without loss of time and loss of life.

Yours truly,
GEO. W. TOWNSEND,
Superintendent Rock Work.

Dear Sir: I enclose to you a copy of the report received from Mr. Geo. W. Townsend, Superintendent of the Patent Safety Powder, to the merits of the Patent Safety Powder, and that for submarine blasting, its use under all circumstances.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
H. G. FOSTER,
Brig. Gen. U. S. A.

The merits of this Powder are:

1st. Its power far exceeds the best Giant Powder, and will therefore save a large percentage of the cost of labor.

2d. Its perfect safety in handling, storing, transportation, as it will only explode when in contact with a fire, and even then only with usual tamping, entirely obviating the necessity to produce explosion.

3d. Explosion generates little or no smoke, and is entirely inoffensive.

4th. Will safely be substituted for black powder in all cases.

5th. Dampness does not deteriorate it.

Department of the Lakes,
Chicago, Ill., Dec. 1, 1868.

From W. Tatham, Esq., Submarine Engineer, to the Lords of the Admiralty, London:

Dear Sir: I have tried your Patent Safety Powder, in charges of about 15 to 20 pounds each, for blasting rock, in the Harbor, and am happy to state that it has been most satisfactory. It is much stronger than Gunpowder. It is in every way to be recommended for submarine blasting, the great advantage being that it may be transported without danger.

I am, dear Sir,
(Signed) W. TATHAM,
Submarine Engineer to the Lords of the Admiralty.

Sherman Shipyard, No. 737 Chestnut St.,
Philadelphia, Feb. 27, 1869.

W. H. Jackson, Esq., President Orient Powder Co.:

Dear Sir: I have used your Patent Safety Powder, introduced to me by your agent, for the last two months. In solid rock we find it a very desirable agent. We have tested it in all ways.

About three weeks since in the presence of several gentlemen, we exploded six holes from nine to twelve feet deep, using from eight to fifteen pounds, in proportion to the depth of the holes, with very satisfactory results. Of the fifty cases shipped us, by rail, we have used twelve, where we should have used one hundred keg of Blasting Powder. Our Foreman informs me they much prefer the compound on account of its safety.

Its different force is such it saves drilling almost one hole in five. We think by what we have seen and to effects there is a great saving above gunpowder.

Yours truly, GEORGE SHARPE,
Contractor of the Baltimore Central Railroad.

W. H. Jackson, Esq., President Orient Powder Co., 136 State Street, Boston:

Dear Sir: We have given your new Blasting Compound a very thorough trial in our work on Sixth Avenue, between 140th and 147th Streets, and can fully endorse what you claim for it, viz., safe, quick, strong and superior strength.

In wet and block holes and also in dry holes in solid rock for submarine blasting, we think a very great gain would be made over ordinary powder.

Respectfully yours,
J. F. SULLIVAN,
R. HEDGE,
Contractors Central Park, New York.

The undersigned having used the Oriental Patent Safety Powder in blasting Oil Wells concur fully in the statements set forth in the following certificates:

J. HENRY ORHAM,
RALPH BAKER,
WM. RICKARDS, Jr.,
C. F. FOWLER.

Boston.—On and after May 1st, the Patent Safety Powder will be sold in lots not less than twenty five pounds.

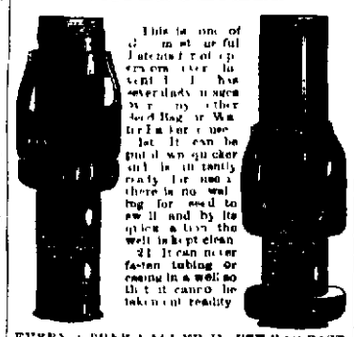
Griffin's Patent WATER PACKER.



This is one of the most useful Patents for operators ever issued. It has several advantages over any other Rod Rag or Water Packer for use. 1st. It can be put down quicker and is instantly ready for use; there is no waiting for seed to swell and by its quick action the well is kept clean. 2d. It can never fasten tubing or casing in a well so that it cannot be taken out readily.

EVERY OTHER PACKER IN USE HAS FASTENED STRINGS OF TUBING AND CASING SO THEY CANNOT BE DRAWN FROM THE WELL.

3d. It is so constructed by means of a left hand screw that it can be loosened in a few minutes and removed from the well will not difficultly. Rag is always on of the rock above the packer will never get out, casing being drawn out readily. Tubing can be put back without repairs.

4th. This is the only Water Packer in use that has not all others being an infringement upon the rights of the Letters Patent granted by the United States to Mason D. Griffin, August 13th, 1867. The Packers now offered to the public at the low price of $[illegible] each are the same as those buying them where they do not give entire satisfaction.
